A University volunteer is an individual who, without the promise, expectation or receipt of compensation, performs services directly related to the business of the University. The purpose of these guidelines and the associated forms is to provide University departments with a process that will assist them in properly selecting volunteers, obtaining needed information, and to ensure that volunteer relationships with the university are clearly established and understood by the volunteers and the departments that engage and supervise volunteers. All volunteer work must be directed and supervised by a University employee. The University requires the same compliance with rules and attention to duties and responsibilities for volunteers as it does for University employees, including background checks. Under the Federal Fair Labor Standards Act, a current non-exempt employee cannot be both a paid employee and a non-paid volunteer while performing the same type of work for the same employer. Consult HR if you have questions regarding current University employee volunteers.

To qualify as a University volunteer, an individual must meet the minimum qualifications to perform the work assignment and agree to abide by the University policies and regulations that govern their actions. Departments are responsible for establishing their own volunteer position descriptions and screening process. Volunteers must have the necessary experience, training and supervision to safely carry out the volunteer work and, depending on the particular function to be performed, must meet the applicable license, certification and University requirements, which may include proof of identity and verification of citizenship or permanent residency status, fingerprinting, background checks and other processes established for specific types of work.

A University volunteer may not perform any work until he or she has completed and signed the volunteer application and the volunteer assignment detailing the work to be performed and agreeing to the relationship of the volunteer to the University. Volunteers must execute a University liability waiver and release. Volunteers involved in development of intellectual property must execute a copyright agreement acknowledging University ownership and to assign the rights to the University. A volunteer under the age of eighteen may not perform any work without consent of their parent or legal guardian.

Departments are responsible for providing their volunteers with the necessary training and supervision to safely carry out their assigned volunteer activities. If the volunteer assignment includes working with machines or equipment, a volunteer cannot perform any work until successful completion of training has been documented. In addition, volunteers working with machines or equipment must be provided with appropriate personal protective equipment.

Volunteers are not considered employees for any purpose. Volunteers must be appointed to non-employee University Affiliate (affiliated worker) positions in HRMS. Volunteers are not eligible for retirement, health benefits, or workers’ compensation as a result of their volunteer status. Although a volunteer does not have the health benefits and liability protections as a regular employee, there are State and Federal laws that provide volunteers with limited protections from exposure to personal liability while performing duties within the scope of their volunteer assignment. In order to assure that volunteers benefit from these protections from personal liability, it is important for departments to specify the scope of their job duties in a written position description at the time of their assignment.

Volunteers serve at the pleasure of the University. Accordingly, a volunteer assignment can be terminated at the discretion of the University at any time, without notice or cause or recourse.
